What is the WOP-P programme?

The Master in Work, Organizational and Personnel Psychology (WOP-P) is currently included in the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Commission.

A joint degree in WOP-P can be obtained by studying at two of the four European universities involved in the programme: University of Valencia (Spain), University of Barcelona (Spain), University of Bologna (Italy) and University of Coimbra (Portugal).

Students can also visit other universities of the Consortium: Florida Institute of Technology (USA), Illinois Institute of Technology (USA), University of Brasilia (Brazil), University of Baltimore (USA), University of Guelph (Canada), and University of Puerto Rico.

How is it implemented?

The duration of the programme is two full time years, with a total workload of 120 ECTS credits distributed in different blocks:

- Courses on WOP-P.
- Free-content courses related to the field.
- A Joint Intensive Learning Unit (Winter- School).
- A professional internship.
- Research training.
- A professional report integrating research and practice from an evidence-based practice approach.

What are the main objectives?

- To prepare the students to be competent practitioners in WOP-P.
- To promote international mobility of students
- To offer a cross-cultural and excellence training in WOP-P to students from all over the world.

Professional qualification:

- Joint Degree.
- Qualification for the professional practice.
- Access to PhD studies.
- Development of professional and research competencies.

European training for excellence

Orientation toward academic excellence and a European perspective is guaranteed in several ways:

- The design is based on solid training models: Euro-Psy certification of the European Federation of Psychology Association (<http://www.europsych-efpa.eu>) and the Reference Model and Minimal Standards of the European Curriculum in WOP-P of the ENOP and EAWOP (<http://www.enop.eu/enop/index.php/curriculum>).
- Teaching staff is composed of well-recognised university professors, researchers and practitioners from the partner universities, and other universities from different countries around the world.
- A rigorous system of quality assurance.

International environment and mobility

- The master promotes direct interaction between students and scholars from European and non-European countries.
- Mobility is reinforced in several ways through the development of the courses in different universities and Joint Intensive Learning Units with students from all the partner institutions.
- Opportunities to visit other universities outside Europe.

Scholarships for students

Scholarships for European and non-EU students are available.

Who can participate in the programme?

Students with a degree in Psychology, with full-time dedication, and B2 level of English language.

Language policy

The WOP-P Master has three language tracks:

- Full in English:
Universities of Valencia and Bologna
- Combination of English and Spanish:
University of Barcelona
- Combination of English and Portuguese:
University of Coimbra
